

Finance

Beginning a career in finance-based field requires a good understanding of the present economy and the stock market. Financial analysts will frequently work with complex computer programs to project financial data into the future and analyze trends. Making substantial investment decisions is a key characteristic of a financial-related position and career.

Most people in a finance career will eventually specialize in a distinct area of finance, such as investment analysis, corporate finance, or real estate. Others will lean towards careers that involve advising clients on financial matters.

Typical careers for Finance majors

- Financial analyst
- Financial consultant
- Commercial banker
- Corporate finance
- Money managers
- Financial planners
- Financial real estate

Examples of companies that hire Finance majors

- Target
- Cargill
- General Mills
- American Airlines
- JP Morgan Chase
- Bank of America
- Wells Fargo
- IBM
- UBS